After graduating from Hacettepe University Child Development Department in 1985, I worked with children with special needs as well as children with typical development. In 1988, I was one of the founders of “Uyum Özel Eğitim” (Uyum Special Education) which is one of the first private educational institutions in Turkey. During the period of operation of the institution, I provided special education to children with special needs, family education to their families, and child-oriented family counseling, and I served as an education coordinator, a teacher trainer, and an administrator.

In addition to my work in practice, I completed my master's and doctorate education at Hacettepe University Child Development Department for children with special needs and their families. In 2013, I received the "Marriage and Family Counseling Certificate" from Ankara University Faculty of Educational Sciences. During this period, I took part in many pieces of training, congresses, events, seminars, various projects, and workshops in the field of special education abroad and in the country.

Since 2012, I have worked as a lecturer at universities and taught courses at the undergraduate level. As of 2017, I have been working as a Dr. Faculty Member at İstanbul Kent University Child Development Department.
